THE AMERICAN RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Information for Dietitians

A Committee on Dietitians of the American Red Cross was appointed in 1916 by the National Committee on Nursing Service to pass upon the credentials of applicants for the Dietitian Service of the American Red Cross, not only for active service with the Society in any emergency that may arise, but as instructors in the Red Cross course in Home Dietetics. This Committee was also made responsible for the establishment of uniform standards for the enrollment of Dietitians.

In making selection of Dietitians for assignment to active service, preference will be given to those who have had practical experience as Hospital Dietitians. Opportunities for such service are limited.

There are widening opportunities for Instructors, chiefly through the agency of Red Cross Chapters. The course of instruction for women, which has been provided by the Red Cross and placed under the Bureau of Instruction at National Headquarters, deals with the importance of a well-balanced diet for adults, children, and invalids; the proper selection and comparative nutritive value of foods; and the underlying principles of dietetics, together with the practical application of this knowledge to buying, cooking, and serving food.

Instructors in this course are subject to the regulations of the Red Cross Nursing Service. For further information on these regulations, dietitians may confer with the educational committee of the nearest Red Cross Chapter.

Applicants should be between twenty-three and fifty years of age. Exceptions to this requirement may be made by the National Committee for those enrolling for special service under the Red Cross.
